Course Description

America has always longed for a unified, national past to which we can return. In recent times, we find many people lamenting the changing racial, ethical, and political climate, breeding either nostalgia for a time that never was or another place in which progress and creativity are nurtured, uninhibited by contemporary constraints. American literature, particularly those works composed between the two world wars, harbors potential to lay bare the harsh realities of so-called “golden eras.” In this course, we will read literary texts that explore the problems with common representations of other cultures, places, and times as ideal lifeworlds: the disturbing satire of future America in Schteyngart’s Super Sad True Love Story, the tragedy of literary idealization in Nabokov’s Lolita, T.S. Eliot’s visions of a desiccated and neurotic Modern world, Fitzgerald’s tragic tale of American lovers in France (Tender is the Night), Kay Boyle’s portrait of the artist as a young woman (Process), Silko’s innovative narrative of the tensions between two eras of American Indian culture and ritual brought on by World War II (Ceremony), and Arthur Phillips’ novel about the lives of American expatriates in Budapest at the end of the Cold War, with Prague serving as the utopic site of the characters’ desires and dreams (Prague).

This course can satisfy the UF Gordon Rule requirement for writing. For more information, see: https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/advising/info/gordon.aspx. The student learning outcomes for this course are as detailed in the Undergraduate Catalog at:

http://www.registrar.ufl.edu/catalog/policies/advisinggened.html#requirements

Objectives and Outcomes

AML 2070 will teach students to

- Analyze various texts and sources with a critical mindset
- Read, write, and think clearly and concisely
- Develop essay-length arguments built around a core thesis
- Consider texts within a historical and literary context
- Synthesize various ideas and concepts over the semester into a final paper
Required Readings

All of the books should be available through the UF campus bookstore, though I highly recommend considering sources like Amazon or other used book retailers to receive the best deals. Please ensure that you obtain complete copies of the texts specified by the ISBN numbers noted below and follow the reading schedule. They are listed in the order we will read them this semester, although some supplementary materials will accompany these required texts which I will distribute to you when necessary.

Super Sad True Love Story—Gary Schteyngart (9780812977868)
Tender is the Night—F. Scott Fitzgerald (9780684830506)
Process—Kay Boyle (9780252073960)
Ceremony—Leslie Marmon Silko (9780143104919)
Prague—Arthur Phillips (9780375759772)

Grading Policies

The course is built around two major essays. The first essay, which requires an extended analysis of one novel, is worth 30% of the course grade. The second essay, which either develops a reading of two novels in conversation with one another OR an analysis of one novel (different from the novel explored in the first paper) with at least three peer reviewed secondary sources, is worth 40%. Each essay is roughly 1600 to 2400 words. Before each of the essays are due, you are to attend an individual meeting with me to discuss any main issues with the paper or questions surrounding the assignment. Failure to or attend the individual meeting will result in a grade penalty on the completed paper.

Journals

These two core grades are supplemented by eight journal entries over the semester, one for each book/cluster of texts we read. Entries will be 350 to 500 words apiece, and altogether are worth 15%. Journals are due by noon on the day of the final discussion class about the given text. Journal entries should be typed in a Word document. Journal entries should explore some specific part of the text (which means quoting at least one passage). If I see that journal entries indicate that you have not read the text, you will receive a zero for that entry.

They cannot be made up, so make sure you remember to submit your entries on time.

Reading Quizzes

An additional 10% is made up of five short reading quizzes, which may consist of either fact-based reading checks or short passage interpretations, given at random dates over the semester.

Participation

The last 10% comes from participation in class discussion and activities. Students may appeal a final grade by filling out a form available from Carla Blount, English Department Program Assistant; this may result in a higher, lower, or ultimately unchanged grade.

Classroom Policies

Attendance

Students are allowed three absences without grade penalty. The fourth absence results in the deduction of a letter grade, and each continued absence will reduce the student’s course grade by one further letter. The sixth absence results in an automatic failure of the course. If a student arrives late to class, they will be marked tardy; two tardies are equivalent to one absence. Students must keep track of their absences over the semester. Failure to do so may result in greatly reduced final averages.

Preparation

As previously mentioned, papers and drafts are due at the beginning of class on the date assigned. Unapproved late papers will not be accepted. Ensure that you provide enough time for yourself to complete any necessary printing or editing before the class.

All papers must be turned in to Sakai along with a hard copy in class. This is to prevent plagiarism as well as provide an online database for your work. Instructions will be provided in-class at the necessary time. Papers must be in 12-point Times New Roman font and double-spaced with 1 inch margins. Be sure to staple papers before submitting hard copies.

Students will be expected to attend a paper conference with me before each due date. These conferences are intended to aid in the creation of a strong, coherent thesis to drive the paper and to clarify any questions you may have about the assignment. They are NOT optional. Failure to attend the conference time will result in an automatic letter grade deduction from the paper being conferenced.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is a serious violation of the Student Honor Code. The Honor Code prohibits and defines plagiarism as follows:

> Plagiarism. A student shall not represent as the student’s own work all or any portion of the work of another. Plagiarism includes (but is not limited to):

  a.) Quoting oral or written materials, whether published or unpublished, without proper attribution.

  b.) Submitting a document or assignment which in whole or in part is identical or substantially identical to a document or assignment not authored by the student.

All students are required to abide by the Student Honor Code. For more information about academic honesty, including these definitions of plagiarism and unauthorized collaboration, see: http://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/honorcodes/honorcode.php

Students with Disabilities

The Disability Resource Center in the Dean of Students Office provides students and faculty with information and support regarding accommodations for students with disabilities in the classroom. For more information, see: http://www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/
Harassment

UF provides an educational and working environment for its students, faculty, and staff that is free from sex discrimination and sexual harassment. For more about UF policies regarding harassment, see: http://www.dso.ufl.edu/studentguide/studentconductcode.php#s4041
