Course Description: Through critically engaging speeches, travel narratives, ethnographies and novels, this course will explore how American writers have constructed and assigned meaning to Haiti and to what ends. The course will ask students to consider how defining Haiti and “Haitianess” in American literature allows American writers to define America and “Americanness” in the context of literary works about the Haitian Revolution, the U.S. Occupation of Haiti from 1915—1934, Haitian tourism and Voodoo. The course will include texts by William Seabrook, Zora Neale Hurston, Langston Hughes and Edwidge Danticat.

Students will learn and develop close reading and literary analysis skills in response papers. Students will have class time to outline, draft and workshop writing assignments individually and in writing groups. All writing assignments will lead to an annotated bibliography and a longer final paper.

This course can satisfy the UF General Education requirement for Composition or Humanities. For more information, see: https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/advising/info/general-education-program.aspx.

This course can also provide 6000 words toward fulfillment of the UF requirement for writing. For more information, see: https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/advising/info/writing-requirement.aspx.

Course Expectations

Communication

The best way to get in contact with me is via email. Please allow at least 24 hours for me to respond to any inquiries. You can also meet with me during office hours and by appointment.

Classroom Behavior

In-class participation and discussion are REQUIRED in this class. Thoughtful participation in class discussion and completion of ALL writing assignments are the best ways to ensure success in this class. Any disrespectful or disruptive behaviors will not be tolerated and will result in dismissal from class.

Attendance

Consistent attendance is required. You are allowed three unexcused absences in this class. After that, each unexcused absence will result in a ten point deduction from your grade. If you have more than six unexcused absences, you will fail this course. Excused absences will not be counted against you, but only university sponsored events such as athletics, band, theater and religious holidays and medical issues with documentation qualify and as excused absences. All excused absences REQUIRE documentation. In the event of any absence, it is YOUR responsibility to find out any notes, assignments or syllabus changes you missed. Please contact one of your fellow students to find out what you missed in class. Additionally, being more than ten minutes late without proper notification will result in an unexcused absence.

General Education Learning Outcomes

The University Writing Requirement (WR) ensures students maintain their fluency in writing and use writing as a tool to facilitate learning, which means AML 2410 course grades have two components:

To receive writing credit, students must pass this course with a “C” or better to satisfy the CLAS requirement for Composition (C) and papers must meet minimum word requirements totaling 6000 words for students to receive the 6,000-word University Writing Requirement (E6).

Course Policies

Statement of Student Disability Services: The Disability Resource Center in the Dean of Students Office provides students and faculty with information and support regarding accommodations for students with disabilities in the classroom. For more information, please see http://www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/

Academic Honesty: All students are required to abide by the Student Honor Code. For more information about academic honesty, including definitions of plagiarism and unauthorized collaboration, please see: http://www.dso.ufl.edu/sccr/honorcodes/honorcode.php

Plagiarism: Plagiarism is a serious violation of the Student Honor Code. The Honor Code prohibits and defines plagiarism as follows: Plagiarism: A student shall not represent as the student’s own work all or any portion of a work of another. Plagiarism includes: (but is not limited to)

a. Quoting oral or written materials, whether published or unpublished, without proper attribution.

b. Submitting a document or assignment which in whole or part is identical or substantially identical to a document or assignment not authored by the student.

All acts of plagiarism will result in failure of the assignment. Every case is different, but plagiarism on an assignment could result in failure of the entire course. All work must be your own! Work from another class is not acceptable. Have integrity; be responsible, organized, and honest about your work. Do not claim ignorance. Be sure to talk to the instructor about any questions you may have with regard to plagiarism, academic honesty and proper citation methods.

Students with Disabilities

The University of Florida complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act. Students requesting classroom accommodation must first register with the Dean of Students Office. The Dean of Students Office will provide documentation to the student who must then provide this documentation to me when requesting accommodation.
